

■ Christian Homeschool Curriculum Guide ■

A Comprehensive Comparison of 30+ Christian Programs

Created for Christian Homeschool Parents

Introduction

This guide provides an overview of major Christian homeschool curriculums, including summaries, comparison factors, and notes on special needs adaptations. It is designed to help Christian homeschool parents quickly compare options and choose what best fits their family values, teaching style, and children's needs.

Curriculum Summaries

Abeka: Traditional, rigorous, structured textbooks + video lessons. Strong academics but heavy for special needs.

BJU Press: Structured, strong in writing/critical thinking. Flexible but still rigorous. Moderate for special needs.

Alpha Omega (Lifepac/Monarch/SOS): Multiple formats: workbooks, online, computer-based. Flexible; online better for ADHD/dyslexia.

Christian Light Publications (CLE): Affordable Mennonite workbook style. Straightforward but not dyslexia-friendly.

ACE (Accelerated Christian Education): Workbook-based, self-paced. Good for ADHD chunks but weak for dyslexia.

Rod & Staff: Traditional, rigorous, text-heavy. Not special-needs friendly.

Classical Conversations: Classical, community-driven. Strong accountability, heavy memory work. Hard for dyslexia.

Memoria Press: Classical, Latin focus. Very rigorous, not dyslexia-friendly.

Veritas Press: Classical with Reformed worldview. Online option helps, but rigorous.

Ambleside Online: Free Charlotte Mason. Gentle, adaptable, great with audiobooks.

Simply Charlotte Mason: CM-inspired guides + booklists. Gentle and flexible, special-needs friendly.

Alveary: CM Institute curriculum, structured with teacher support. Adaptable but prep-heavy.

Sonlight: Literature-based, parent-heavy. Excellent with audiobooks, great for dyslexia.

My Father's World: Blends CM + unit studies + missions. Gentle, adaptable, family-style.

Beautiful Feet Books: History through living books. Flexible, adaptable with audiobooks.

Heart of Dakota: Lit/unit study, daily plans. Teacher-heavy, adaptable with care.

Gather 'Round Homeschool: Family-style unit studies. Highly adaptable, special-needs friendly.

Trail Guide to Learning: Lit + geography unit studies. Adaptable but reading-heavy.

Master Books: Faith-integrated, short lessons. Affordable, gentle, special-needs friendly.

The Good and the Beautiful: Open-and-go, CM-inspired. Gentle, adaptable, good for ADHD.

Easy Peasy: Free, online, Christian. Flexible, depends on learner.

Compass Classroom: Christian video-based. Great for ADHD, less so for dyslexia.

Apologia: Creation-based science. Solid, hands-on labs good for ADHD; texts heavy for dyslexia.

Notgrass History: History + Bible integration. Reading-heavy, best with audiobooks.

SchoolhouseTeachers.com: Membership, 400+ courses. Huge variety, adaptable for special needs.

Excelsior Classes: Christian live online classes. Good accountability, ADHD-friendly.

Liberty University Online Academy: Accredited, Christian, flexible. More friendly for special needs than most academies.

Christian Liberty Press: Affordable, straightforward. Workbook-heavy, not dyslexia-friendly.

Living Books Curriculum: Charlotte Mason, living books. Adaptable with audiobooks.

Konos Curriculum: Character-based unit studies, hands-on. Great for ADHD/kinesthetic learners.

Seton Home Study (Catholic): Traditional, Catholic. Rigid, not special-needs friendly.

Kolbe Academy (Catholic): Classical Catholic. Rigorous, not dyslexia-friendly.

Faith Academy Online: Christian, accredited. Moderate for special needs, depends on course.
